'Only love can bring about the true multiplication of bread. Material gifts, what is quantitative, always diminish through being divided. Love increases the more it gives itself. Christ the Lord is the bread (of life) and he is also the fish that for our sake has gone down into the water of death to look for us there and to find us. This is the lesson of the breakfast to which Jesus invites his own intimate friends on the borderline of time and eternity, the Eucharist. Come and eat, he says to us and thus enables us already to cross the boundary of time and death.'

[Pope Benedict XVI meditation in April Magnificat p 99]
